HOMES OF THE DIPLOMATS

Many Nations Have Purchased Our Handsome Properties Here.

Chase-Gotlieb Wedding-Miss Rockefeller's Romantic Attachment for Harold McCormick.

Mr. and Mrs. Von Hegenmuller are quite settled in the former home of Admiral Upshur, for which they have taken a long lease. There is a story current that Mr. Von Hegenmuller is endeavoring to have his government purchase the property for a permanent legation.

In recent years it has become more and more the custom for foreign nations to buy property in the capitals in which they maintain embassies. Great Britain was the first to acquire property in Washington and was a pioneer in what is now the fashionable part of town and for a long time it was the only house of any importance in that section. Germany followed ber lead and purchased property on Fifteenth street and for years occupied the old-fashioned and roomy flouse which still stands on that site, but exchanged it about two years ago for Mr. Ferguson's house on Highland place, Extensive additions were made, so that the first scretary, how Baron K-titer, could be accommodated in the embassy.

Haron Ketter, come in the embassy.

Japan I showed zoon after Germany and bonget a large and handsomely appointed house on N street, but which is of much more modest appearance than either the English or German embassies, though perfectly well adapted for the needs of the legation.

Koren owns the legation on lowa Circle, bought of Mr. B. L. Phelps, a former District Commissioner. Heazil purchased has year the house of the late Judge Mathews, on N street, for its legation. It is large and roomy and gives Mr. Mendonca for the first time statee to display his fine collection of paintings to advantage.

The Mexican legation, on I street, which is owned by the government, is one of the show houses of Washington. The ballroom, decorated by Tiffany, is one of the largest and handsomest. China, which purchased has year three large brownsions houses on Fourteenth street, is the last mation to buy property here for a legation.

Tomorrow at 81. Andrew's Church. London, occurs the marriage of Lieut. Commander W. 8. Cowles, naval attache to the United States embassy at London, to Miss Roosevelt, first secretary of the American legation in England, and has been at the head of her brother's establishment store the death of his wife. She has a fortune in her own right, and those Washingtonians who met her in Europe hast summer report her as a charming girl of unusual talents and accomplishments.

Licat. Cowles is very much liked in Washington and popular with all the clubment.

America is following closely the example of foreign countries in the erection of plastial homes destined to last bundreds of years, and to gain only in beauty by the lapse of time. The magnificent colonial residence of Mrs. Elliot F. Shepard, who has many intimate friends among Washingtonians, is illustrative of this.

This superb mansion is at Scarboroughon-the-Hudson, and has been recently completed and furnished. It is built of Italian brick and terra cotta, and is situated on an elevation commanding a view of the Hudson River and the Palisades.

Gates of carved stone and iron, brought from France, guard the entrance to the grounds, and massive walls of granite encicle the grounds, which are a marvel of the landscape gardener's art and natural beauty. Corinhian columns two stories in height support the main entrance, and the verandas and terra ces are early Italian in construction. The ball and stairways are of Italian marble hung with Gobelin tapestries.

The principal rooms on the first floor are arranged so they can open into one huge room, when it is desirable to do so, and the walls are variously adorned with Spanish cedar and Italian leather. Venetian and Syrian brica-brac, bought by Mrs. Shepard in her travels, ortament the drawing roooms, golden wall coverings making an exquisite background for them.

The reception rooms are finished in blue and gold. There is an open fireplace, surmounted by an ornamental manteipiece and freize, which took Italian skilled eculptors years to complete. Near this room are the breakfast room and the great daing hall, finished in white and gold, with great fireplaces, which were also imported from Italy.

Her Millionaire Friend in Brooklyn Refused to Marry Her.

BALTIMORE STORY'S SECUEL

Exasperated When She Returned

From Washington to Her Baltimore Lodgings to Find That Her Wealthy Friend Had Taken Away All Her Furniture and Ornaments.

New York, Nov. 25.—The attempted sufside of Minnie Arnett, who had been living in Baltimore for some time in rooms loxuriously furnished by Millionnire Winkemeier, of Brooklyn, and who came to the latter's home last night and attempted suicide because Winkemeier had swept the Baltimore ledgings of all their belongings during her absence at Washington, bascreated the livelicest sensation of any scandal in this city for many a day.

Miss Arnott is stid living and the doctors think she may survive, though her antemortem statement has been taken. It is as follows:

"My name is Minnie Arnett. I am twenty-two years old, and I shot myself because Christian F. Winkemeter, who ruined me, went back on me. He kept me in a hand-somely furnished house in Baltimore up to a few weeks ago. He ruined me, but I did not know he was married at the time."

STORY OF THE SHOOTING.

Winkemeier's house on the Park slope is one of the finest residences in that firsh-ionable vicinity. It is a four-story brown-since house with a wide, winding stoop. It stands out conspicuously in the bi-ck be-tween President and Carroll streets.

Eighth avenue begins at Flatbush avenue, and the west side of the street for a couple of blocks is known as Sportingmen's row. Judge Gaynor, Alfred C. Chapin, William Ziegier, Snapper Garrison, Mirabeau L. Towns, the poet-lagyer; Phil Dwyer, the turiman: Joseph Wechsier and others consider the state of the millionaire last Wednesday, and only ield after Winkemeier gave her the money she demanded.

Miss Arnott had raised a row at the house of the millionaire last Wednesday, and only ield after Winkemeier gave her the money she demanded.

Miss Arnott had raised a the Winkemeier residence on Friday evening and stood on the stoop for an hour without obtaining admittunes. She inquired anxiously about the furniture and wanted to know from a servant if it had been received. Peter F. Reilly, a storage and warehouse man at No. 588 Bean street, carted the furniture to M. Winkemeier's house.

He sand yesterday that he received a telephone message on Friday morning asking him to send a van to the Pennsylvania Raffron' depot in Jersey City and take a load of furniture to Mr. Winkemeier's house He dir not know who had sent the message. The furniture was delivered and he was going to send the bill for transportation to Mr. Winkemeier's house He dir not know who had sent the message. PUZZLED BY MANY CALLERS.

PUZZLED BY MANY CALLERS.

The physiciaus were somewhat puzzled by the mamber of callers. Most of the railies were men, and the doctors could only attribute their interest to morbid curlosity. Nobody except Coroner Kene was allowed to see her.

Dr Goodrich, house surgeon at the hospital, described Miss Arnett as a young woman of large frame, weighing about 140 pounds She had an ordinary face, which might seem attractive to some persons, but their was nothing very striking about it. She has two solid gold front teeth. Dr. Goodrich described her wound as a guisshot wound, penetrating the right lung.

He said she suffered from some internal hemorrhage, but it was not enough to prove fatal atthough a crisis might arise at any time. He said the greatest anager was that septic-pneumonta might set in. She was conscious, but partly under the influence of mireotics. She is held as a prisoner and guarded by Detective-Sergeant Kelly, who si's outside the door of the ward where she is lying:
